Case Report

Narrative:

On 19 March 2014, I received an email from Special Agent Supervisor Joshua Stueckle relating that the raffle licensee, NRA Foundation INC/State Fund Committee (00-22598) had paid out prizes in excess of $300,000 (Attachment AT01). WAC 230-11-067 specifically states that raffle licensees must not exceed $300,000 of prizes paid annually unless it has been approved by the Commission. Attached to the email was the Raffle Annual Activity Report for the NRA Foundation Inc and the licensing spreadsheet that identifies non-profits and their annual prize payout totals (Attachment AT02).

On 20 March 2014, at approximately 1317 hours, I contacted Keifer Lewis, the Manager at the NRA Foundation Inc/State Fund Committee via telephone. I asked him if he completed the Raffle yearly activity report for the non-profit and he stated he did. I also asked him if the non-profit had a total prizes paid of $335,017 and he stated raffles did very well last year. I told Lewis that based on WAC 230-11-067(3) he must request from the Commission approval to exceed $300,000 in prizes paid. Lewis claimed that he didn't know about the requirement and would do whatever he needed to do to fix it. I asked Lewis if he was expecting to pay out more than $300,000 in future years and he stated yes. I told Lewis I would be sending him a Notice of Infraction (NOI) based on the violation of the above mentioned WAC (Attachment AT03). I told him I would send him a copy of WAC 230-11-067 (Attachment AT04) and Assistant Director of Licensing, Tina Griffin's number for future contact. I told Lewis I would email and send a hard copy of these in the mail.

On 21 March 2014, I sent Lewis an email with attachments containing the NOI, WAC, a copy of the Annual Activity Report, and Tina Griffin's contact information (Attachment AT05). I also sent him the originals of the aforementioned documents via mail to the proper address. The case is closed and an NOI issued.

Subject: FW: 230-11-067(3) prizes over $300K

Hello Mark,

Every year Cameron checks to see if any raffle licensees awarded raffle prizes greater than $300,000 during a license year to verify that we do not have any licensees in violation of WAC 230-11-067, offering prizes greater than $300,000 without Commissioner approval. The NRA reported that they awarded $335,000 in raffle prizes for during their license year November 17, 2012 to November 16, 2013. The NRA did not seek approval of the Commissioners during this license year prior to offering raffle prizes in excess of $300,000.

Two years ago your agents made contact with the licensees that violated the rule. Will that be the same in this case? If so, could they pass along my contact information in case the licensee wants to request Commission approval in the future?

Thank you,
Tina

Hi Tina,

Am attaching a page from cy13's stat1d annual raffle listing, with the Top10 descending Prize totals.

It can also be found in U:\FRS share\TinaG.

One licensee appears to have reported more than $300K in prizes last year [see WAC 230-11-067 \(3\)].

NRA Fdn 00-22598 02-09146, in line 1, reported prizes of $335,017 in 2013 (scanned copy attached).

A Comment in GIMS has different name & contact phone number, if that might be useful.

Mr. Lewis, I have attached the Notice of Infraction (NOI) and WAC 230-11-067(3) that the non-profit violated. As stated in the phone call yesterday, this is a written warning of violation for paying out prizes in excess of $300,000. WASHINGTON STATE GAMBLING COMMISSION

Case Report

Narrative:

On 5/14/2015 I received an email from Special Agent Supervisor Karen REA about a complaint the commission received from an anonymous person. The complaint was about the North Puget Sound Friends of NRA (National Rifle Association), an organization that held raffles on 4/11/2015 at the Nile Shrine Country Club in Mountlake Terrace. According to the complainant, "the person selling the bucket raffle tickets to attendees ended up winning about 50% of the 100+ items available. There was a chance to upgrade your ticket packages but didn't see any real way for the organization to track monies in/out with tickets sold. Did he win because he purchased, or helped himself to so many tickets?" The complainant suggested the commission should investigate the raffle or "at least put on the commissions' [SIC] "watch" list." The complainant attached two pages of a promotional flier about the event, attachment AT01.

According to the flier, the "Annual Event and Auction Fundraiser" was on behalf of the NRA Foundation. The NRA Foundation holds a class F raffle license. They hold raffles throughout the state under this license.

On 5/14/2015 I sent an email to the email address on the flier. A short time later, I received a call from a person named Bradley KRUGER who is the Western Region Director for the NRA. I explained the complaint to him and I asked to review the raffle records. He said he was on vacation and his field representative had the records. He asked if I could give them some time for him to return from vacation and for him to gather the records. He asked for the end of May. I said that would be fine.

On 6/3/2015 KRUGER sent me an email requesting more time. I replied and gave him more time.

On 6/19/2015 KRUGER sent me the records, attachment AT02. According to the records, at the event on 4/11/2015 there were 13 different raffles, four of which were alternative drawing format raffles called bucket raffles. The records were done on an Excel Spreadsheet and were not completed in the commission's prescribed format. Besides not being in the required format, the records were missing the following required information:

- There was no Merchandise Inventory Control Log;
- The date of the drawing(s) was not included;
- There were no beginning and ending ticket numbers;
- Expenses were not recorded;
- There was no net income for some raffles;
- There was no cash over/short;
- The records were not signed and dated;
- Some winner's names, addresses, and phone numbers were missing;
- There was no Total Prizes Paid; and
- There was no Raffle Ticket Distribution Log

The bucket raffles were the raffles the complainant mentioned. The raffle tickets were differentiated by color – white, red, blue, and gold. The colors of the buckets matched the colors of the tickets. These were separate raffles because each color cost a different amount. The white tickets were only sold in bundles of five tickets for $20. There were no individual white tickets for sale. Red tickets cost $20, Blue cost $50, and Gold cost $100. I noted the licensee also sold tickets as "packages," mixing tickets from more than one color. For example, for $100, a player could buy a package of 25 white tickets, one red ticket, and one blue ticket. Without the package, individually these tickets would cost $170. So buying the package saves the player $70. Continuing with this package as an example, the records indicated the licensee sold 13 of these packages for a total of $1,300. There was no way for me to determine the gross receipts of the individual white, red, and gold bucket raffles because the tickets were sold as a package and discounted. I later found out that the person who sold the raffle tickets for the bucket raffles was someone named Wiley McDONALD. According to the complainant, McDONALD won "about 50% of the 100+ items available." While reviewing the records, I noted there were 13 prizes that were more than $50 and there were 44 prizes that were $50 and less. Ten of the 13 prizes over $50 had the winners' names recorded on the records. McDONALD was listed as winning three of those prizes. None of the winners' names were recorded for the prizes that were $50 and less.

Because the licensee did not maintain a Raffle Ticket Distribution Log and they did not maintain the unsold tickets, I could not determine if McDONALD had merely been lucky or had "helped himself to so many tickets" as the complainant questioned.

Case Report

On 7/16/2015 I had a meeting with KRUGER at the commission's Everett office. Also present were Michael HERRERA, Washington Field Representative, and Kimber BRATSCH, National Compliance Manager. KRUGER said he requested the meeting because he wanted to review our requirements and he wanted to ensure they stayed in compliance. We met for about an hour and they asked many questions about our requirements. KRUGER said that HERRERA completed the records I reviewed. He explained HERRERA is responsible for all the raffles they hold in Washington. I asked how many more raffle events they planned to hold this year and they said there were six more – Gig Harbor, Colville, Centralia, Auburn, Chelan, and Davenport. HERRERA said he is the person who draws all the tickets at each event and he completes all the records. I asked KRUGER if HERRERA could buy raffle tickets and he said, no. I then asked if the people selling the tickets could buy them and KRUGER said they could. I asked if they maintained the unsold raffle tickets and HERRERA said they did not. He said he did not realize they were required to keep them but in future raffles they would.

I gave them copies of the commission's Frequently Asked Raffle Questions, the Raffle Recordkeeping Packet, and copies of several raffle rules. I told them they needed to use our recordkeeping packet. I told HERRERA to review the documents and then call me if he had any questions. I invited him to meet with me again if he felt the need. He said he would. This concluded our meeting.

After the meeting I reviewed the records a second time. I noted there were three raffles that seemed to not have been conducted using any of our authorized formats. The raffles were described as a "Duck Pond Raffle," a "Sponsor Drawing," and a "Key Prize" raffle. I sent an email to HERRERA and asked him to explain how the raffles worked. He replied and explained the following for each raffle:

- Duck Pond Raffle
 - o The duck represents the raffle ticket. There are 125 ducks and each person who plays has an opportunity to pick a duck. Each duck is numbered from 1 to 125 on the underside. For each duck drawn, a corresponding number is placed in a bucket and a number is chosen to determine the winner.
- Sponsor Drawing
 - o Each person who pays for a "dinner package" receives a raffle ticket, which has a "perceived" value of $5.00.
- Key Prize Raffle
 - o According to HERRERA, "There are certain items identified on our live auction which include a raffle ticket for the highest bidder of that particular item. The highest bidder of that item receives a raffle ticket and a chance of winning the key prize. The value we assign to a key prize raffle ticket is $50.00."

After receiving HERRERA's explanations, I determined the Duck Pond Raffle violated the requirement of using raffle tickets. The Sponsor Drawing was in violation because the raffle ticket cost was included in the cost of the dinner package and was the equivalent of a "door prize" rather than a raffle. The Key Prize raffle was in violation because the only means of entry was by being the highest bidder of a live auction item. There was no specific cost of each raffle ticket.

HERRERA had sent me copies of the validated deposit receipts from the raffle. Other than the credit card sales, which totaled $6,970.00, I was able to confirm that the raffle net receipts were deposited. I asked HERRERA to send me the bank statement that showed the credit card deposits. He sent me an email with an attached copy of a statement from "Chase Paymentech," attachment AT03. According to this statement, there were deposits from credit cards from 4/12/2015 totaling $15,105.02. This amount was $8,135.02 more than the raffle credit card sales of $6,970.00. In his email, HERRERA explained that the extra credit card deposits represented other revenue. Because the raffle credit card deposits were comingled with other revenue, I was unable to compare the deposits to the credit card sales for raffle tickets. Thus, I was unable to determine if all the raffle proceeds were deposited.

On 9/14/2015 I had a conference call with HERRERA, KRUGER, and BRATSCH. I reminded them of the nature of the complaint and I said because their recordkeeping was insufficient I could not verify if all the funds were accounted for or whether or not McDONALD paid for all of his tickets. Consequently, I explained, I could not determine if the complainant's suspicions were true or false. KRUGER said he was upset at the complainant's accusation and he wished he knew who the complainant was so he could talk to him or her directly. He said their integrity is important to them and he did not like the fact that someone feels they are not honest. I told him I appreciated his concerns. I then explained each violation I found and I said the commission would send them a Warning Letter detailing the violations. BRATSCH said since our meeting in July they have been using our recordkeeping forms. She added that they also have opened a gambling receipts account and they no longer comingle gambling funds with other funds. They thanked me for my time and assured me they would comply with our laws and rules in the future. This ended my conversation with them.

A Warning Letter is recommended for the following violations:

1. WAC 230-07-130(1) Failure to provide an audit trail satisfactory for us to verify that the funds were used for the licensee's stated purpose.

We received an anonymous complaint regarding the bucket raffles you conducted on April 11, 2015. The complainant was concerned the person who sold the tickets for the four bucket raffles won too many of the bucket raffle prizes. The complainant suggested the ticket seller may have stolen some of the raffle tickets and placed them in the buckets. Because you failed to maintain a Raffle Ticket Distribution Log, failed to maintain the unsold raffle tickets, operated more than one discount plan per raffle, and failed to keep gambling deposits separate from other deposits, we could not determine if all the raffle tickets and funds were accounted for.

Charitable or nonprofit licensees must maintain records which clearly show how the licensee used or disbursed the funds from each licensed activity. These records must provide an audit trail satisfactory for us to verify that the funds were used for the licensee's stated purpose(s).

2. WAC 230-11-100(1)(2)(c)(e) Failure to maintain raffle records in the format required by the commission. Failure to maintain name, address, and telephone numbers for all winners of a prize with a fair market value of more than $50. Failure to maintain all unsold tickets for individual raffles for which gross gambling receipts exceed $5,000.

For at least the raffles you held on April 11, 2015, you failed to maintain raffle records in the format prescribed by the commission. In addition, you failed to record all the winners' names, addresses, and telephone numbers as required. Lastly, you failed to maintain all unsold raffle tickets as required.

Licensees conducting Class E or Class F raffles or conducting raffles using alternative drawing formats must prepare a detailed record for each raffle they conduct in the standard format we provide. They must maintain the name, address, and telephone number of all winners of a prize with a fair market value of more than $50. And they must maintain all unsold tickets for individual raffles for which gross gambling receipts exceed $5,000.

3. WAC 230-07-090(1)(a)(c)(e) Failure to keep a separate gambling receipts account. Failure to deposit all gambling receipts first into the gambling receipts account. Failure to make all deposits of net gambling receipts separate from all other deposits.

You deposited raffle receipts from credit card sales in an account at Chase Bank. These receipts for raffle ticket sales were comingled with other kinds of sales that were not from the raffle.

Charitable or nonprofit licensees must protect all funds generated from gambling activities and keep these funds separate from their general funds. Licensees must keep a separate gambling receipts account(s) in a recognized Washington state bank, mutual savings bank, or credit union. Additionally, they must deposit all gambling receipts first into the account before spending or transferring them into other accounts, except for prize payouts. Furthermore, licensees must also make all deposits of net gambling receipts from each activity separately from all other deposits, and keep the validated deposit receipt as a part of their records.

4. WAC 230-11-025(1)(c)(d) Failure to make single non-discounted tickets available. Using more than one discount plan for each raffle.

For your "white" bucket raffle, you sold five tickets for $20. You did not give people the option of buying one ticket. Also, you

(425) 304-6300

Case Report

offered six different discount plans mixing various combinations of tickets from the four "white," "red," "blue," and "gold" bucket raffles.

Licensees may put tickets together in a bundle and sell them at a discount if they make single non-discounted tickets available to all participants. Licensees may only offer one discount plan for each raffle.

5. WAC 230-07-105(2) Failure to maintain an inventory control record for each item purchased or donated to use as prizes.

You failed to maintain a Merchandise Inventory Control Log.

Licensees must maintain an inventory control record for each item purchased or donated to use as prizes for gambling activities in the format we require.

6. RCW 9.46.0277 Failure to use raffle tickets. Combining the cost of a raffle ticket with the purchase of another item. Awarding raffle tickets as prizes during a live auction.

During the event held on April 11, 2015, you conducted a raffle you referred to as a "Duck Pond" raffle. Instead of using raffle tickets as required in RCW 9.46.0277, you used pre-numbered toy ducks. Also, you conducted a raffle called a "Sponsor Drawing" in which people who purchased dinner were automatically entered into a raffle rather than holding the raffle as a separate event. Additionally, you conducted a raffle called a "Key Prize" in which people who were the highest bidders during a live auction received raffle tickets.

Raffles are games in which tickets bearing an individual number are sold for not more than one hundred dollars each and in which a prize or prizes are awarded on the basis of a drawing from the tickets.

Warning Letter

Marc Ueltschi;

This letter is to notify you of the following violations of the Washington Administrative Codes (WAC):

1. WAC 230 07 130(1) Failure to provide an audit trail satisfactory for us to verify that the funds were used for the licensee's stated purpose.

We received an anonymous complaint regarding the bucket raffles you conducted on April 11, 2015. The complainant was concerned the person who sold the tickets for the four bucket raffles won too many of the bucket raffle prizes. The complainant suggested the ticket seller may have stolen some of the raffle tickets and placed them in the buckets. Because you failed to maintain a Raffle Ticket Distribution Log, failed to maintain the unsold raffle tickets, operated more than one discount plan per raffle, and failed to keep gambling deposits separate from other deposits, we could not determine if all the raffle tickets and funds were accounted for.

Charitable or nonprofit licensees must maintain records which clearly show how the licensee used or disbursed the funds from each licensed activity. These records must provide an audit trail satisfactory for us to verify that the funds were used for the licensee's stated purpose(s).

2. WAC 230 11 100(1)(2)(c)(e) Failure to maintain raffle records in the format required by the commission. Failure to maintain name, address, and telephone numbers for all winners of a prize with a fair market value of more than $50. Failure to maintain all unsold tickets for individual raffles for which gross gambling receipts exceed $5,000.

For at least the raffles you held on April 11, 2015, you failed to maintain raffle records in the format prescribed by the commission. In addition, you failed to record all the winners' names, addresses, and telephone numbers as required. Lastly, you failed to maintain all unsold raffle tickets as required.

P.O. Box 42400 Olympia, Washington 98504-2400 (360) 486-3440 1-800-345-2529 FAX (360) 486-3632

Licensees conducting Class E or Class F raffles or conducting raffles using alternative drawing formats must prepare a detailed record for each raffle they conduct in the standard format we provide. They must maintain the name, address, and telephone number of all winners of a prize with a fair market value of more than $50. And they must maintain all unsold tickets for individual raffles for which gross gambling receipts exceed $5,000.

3. WAC 230 07 090(1)(a)(c)(e) Failure to keep a separate gambling receipts account. Failure to deposit all gambling receipts first into the gambling receipts account. Failure to make all deposits of net gambling receipts separate from all other deposits.

You deposited raffle receipts from credit card sales in an account at Chase Bank. These receipts for raffle ticket sales were comingled with other kinds of sales that were not from the raffle.

Charitable or nonprofit licensees must protect all funds generated from gambling activities and keep these funds separate from their general funds. Licensees must keep a separate gambling receipts account(s) in a recognized Washington state bank, mutual savings bank, or credit union. Additionally, they must deposit all gambling receipts first into the account before spending or transferring them into other accounts, except for prize payouts. Furthermore, licensees must also make all deposits of net gambling receipts from each activity separately from all other deposits, and keep the validated deposit receipt as a part of their records.

4. WAC 230 11 025(1)(c)(d) Failure to make single non discounted tickets available. Using more than one discount plan for each raffle.

For your "white" bucket raffle, you sold five tickets for $20. You did not give people the option of buying one ticket. Also, you offered six different discount plans mixing various combinations of tickets from the four "white," "red," "blue," and "gold" bucket raffles.

Licensees may put tickets together in a bundle and sell them at a discount if they make single non discounted tickets available to all participants. Licensees may only offer one discount plan for each raffle.

5. WAC 230 07 105(2) Failure to maintain an inventory control record for each item purchased or donated to use as prizes.

You failed to maintain a Merchandise Inventory Control Log.

Licensees must maintain an inventory control record for each item purchased or donated to use as prizes for gambling activities in the format we require.

6. RCW 9.46.0277 Failure to use raffle tickets. Combining the cost of a raffle ticket with the purchase of another item. Awarding raffle tickets as prizes during a live auction.

During the event held on April 11, 2015, you conducted a raffle you referred to as a "Duck Pond" raffle. Instead of using raffle tickets as required in RCW 9.46.0277, you used pre numbered toy ducks. Also, you conducted a raffle called a "Sponsor Drawing" in which people who purchased dinner were automatically entered into a raffle rather than holding the raffle as a separate event. Additionally, you conducted a raffle called a "Key Prize" in which people who were the highest bidders during a live auction received raffle tickets.

Raffles are games in which tickets bearing an individual number are sold for not more than one hundred dollars each and in which a prize or prizes are awarded on the basis of a drawing from the tickets.

You are not being charged at this time. However, if we determine you have participated in any other violations of the gambling laws of Washington State we may recommend criminal charges are filed against you. If you have any questions, call Special Agent Danny Lisa, (206) 786 3537.

Respectfully,

1-800-345-2529

Case Report

Narrative:

On August 22, 2017, I started a Class E+ Raffle Compliance Module (See Attachment 1) with NRA Foundation Inc. Raffle Manager Michael HERRERA. The purpose of my review was to determine whether the NRA Foundation was conducting their raffles in accordance with Washington State Gambling Commission Raffle rules and the proceeds from the Raffles were going towards the licensee's state purpose. The NRA foundation has multiple chapters in Washington State, but only one gambling license. In order to complete the review, and verify the licensee was accurately reporting gross receipts and prizes paid on their Raffle Activity Report, I needed to review raffle records for each chapter. HERRERA failed to bring all the records to our initial meeting and took several months getting all the raffle records and documents I required to complete my review due in part because he was moving his office to eastern Washington. Eventually, I reviewed the Raffle Summaries, Ticket Distribution Logs, Winner's Registers, and Merchandise Inventory Control Logs for all the raffles conducted by the NRA Foundation Inc., for the license year ending November 16, 2016. I also reviewed their gambling account bank statements, advertisements, invoices, winning and un-played tickets, and other documents.

The licensee conducts all their raffles at annual meetings that are open to the public. The names of the raffles seem to indicate they are alternative drawing format raffles, however, with the exception of the Card Deck Raffles, the licensee sells raffle tickets to participants. The winner of these raffles are determined by drawing the ticket out of a container. The licensee is operating Card Deck Raffles as described in WAC 230-11-090(4). However, they failed to ensure that this raffle was conducted as a member's only raffle in violation with WAC 230-11-090(4). The licensee received a verbal warning for this violation.

The licensee created their own Raffle Records in the form of excel spreadsheets. These spreadsheets include columns for all the information required in our required format. However, the information in those columns did not have the following required information for the Mount Rainier Chapter:

- 1) The Raffle Summary (See Attachment 2) does not list the cost or fair market value of all donated prizes awarded in violation of WAC 230-11-100(1). The Raffle Summary only states that these prizes are donated.
- 2) The licensee created a Purchased/Donated Merchandise record (See Attachment 3) in an Excel Spreadsheet that has a column for all the required information for a Merchandise Inventory Control Record. However, the licensee did not record the name of the donor/vendor or the date purchased/received for all items listed in violation of WAC 230-11-100. Additionally, the Reason for Inventory Removal is not adequate. Every prize listed states that the reason was "Raffle Prize". It is almost impossible to trace the prize to an individual raffle. Therefore, the licensee should include the name of the raffle where the prize was won.
- 3) The licensee failed to record the correct ticket numbers for the tickets issued for the Duck Pond Raffle on the Raffle Ticket Distribution Log (See Attachment 4) for the Mount Rainier Chapter in violation of WAC 230-11-100(1). The ticket numbers recorded on the Raffle Ticket Distribution Log are different from those recorded on the Raffle Summary (See Attachment 2) and did not add up to the number of tickets recorded as being issued.
- 4) The licensee failed to record the value of the $100 Gift Certificate from on the Raffle Summary for the Buy It Now Auction for the Mount Rainier Chapter. In fact, the $100 gift certificate was not on the Merchandise Inventory Control Log/Purchased/Donate Merchandise Record or the Winner's Record (See Attachment 5) in violation of WAC 230-11-100(1).
- 5) The flyer for the Meat Raffle (See Attachment 6) does not include a description of the contents of the cooler in violation of WAC 230-11-015(3). The value of contents of the cooler and the $100 Gift Certificate from Marksman are not on the Prize Inventory Control Log or the Winner's Record and the value of all donated prizes listed on the Raffle Summary are missing in violation of WAC 230-11-100(1).

My review of the Pre-Event Raffle for the Mount Rainier Chapter found no material violation in the gross receipts reported on the Raffle Summary.

I also reviewed each chapter and my review of WA-11 found two major problems. The licensee failed to record any winner information on the Raffle Winner's Record (See Attachment 7) for any of the prizes won over $50 in violation of WAC

Case Report

230-11-100(2)(c). The licensee also materially overstated the value of prizes won in violation of WAC 230-11-100(1). While most Chapters underreported prizes paid on the raffle summary, this was most likely because they were not recording the value of donated merchandise prizes. In this case, the licensee over-reported the value of prizes awarded by $11,802. The Raffle Summary (See Attachment 8) indicated they awarded $21,625 and this did not include the value of prizes paid for at least three raffles. The Raffle Winners Record and the Merchandise Inventory Control Log indicated the prizes were only worth $9823. I later received revised records, which still showed a discrepancy was $3009 or 14% of the amount recorded on the Raffle Summary.

On July 10, 2018, I participated in a conference call involving NRA National Compliance Manager Kimber BRATSCH, Secretary Skipp GALYTHLY, and Director of Finance Christy MAJORS. The topic of this conference call involved how Credit Card Transactions were conducted and the flow of funds for the raffles. I needed to verify that the funds from the raffles went to the organization and was used for the organization's stated purpose. I had tried to obtain bank statements for several branches with the intent of verifying they received the proceeds from the raffle and that the proceeds were being used for their stated purpose. However, HERRERA did not send me the bank statements I had requested because the funds were not flowing as they normally would with a local nonprofit. WAC 230-07-090 states licensees must protect all funds generated from gambling activities and keep these funds separate from their general funds. WAC 230-070-090(1)(a) requires that licensees keep a separate gambling receipts account in a recognized Washington state bank, mutual savings bank or credit union. Subsection (1) (b) states they must deposit only gambling receipts into that account and subsection (c) states that they must deposit all gambling receipts first into the account before spending or transferring them into other accounts. BRATSCH told me that the fund raising events conducted include auctions, dinners, and sponsorships. She said that all credit card receipts (raffle and non-raffle) go directly into the National Organizations operating account (in violation of WAC 230-07-090(1) (c)). She also stated that all non-credit card sales from raffle and non-raffle activities go into the state organizations gambling account (in violation of WAC 230-07-090(1) (b)) up to the total raffle sale amount. If they don't have enough cash sales to deposit into the gambling account to account for the raffle sales, they then transfer the difference from the National Organization's account into the state organization's gambling account. They then transfer the cash back into the National Organization's operating account. If the cash from the activity is greater than the raffle sales, that cash goes into the local organization's main account and then transferred to the National Operating account after all expenses are paid. The proceeds from the raffle are divided equally between the state and the national organization and the local chapters have a meeting to decide where their 50% goes.

I asked BRATSCH and MAJORS if they had separate general ledger accounts for the different branches so I could at least track the funds that way. MAJORS said they did, but that it would take a while to get the information together.

On September 21, 2018, I finally got a response from BRATSCH, which included two documents. Neither document included any details of specific transactions or appeared to be what I knew to be a details of a general ledger account. One document (See Attachment 9) was more like a balance sheet and showed the balance of FNRA Restricted Fund balance for the Washington State as of December 31, 2017. The other document was a spreadsheet entitled "WA Event Financial Data" (See Attachment 10) and included total income and expense items for each chapter for the year. It did not include any information about specific expenses such as whom the payments went to and what they were for. However, the total drawings figure did match the gross receipts reported on their Annual Activity Report to the Gambling Commission. The licensee failed to provide the documents I requested in violation of WAC 230-06-074(3).

On October 4, 2018, I received an email from HERRERA responding to a question I had about the $300, $500, $1,000, and $2000 ticket bundles I found on several branches Raffle Summaries by providing a document with the heading "WA State FNRA Bucket Tickets". This document (See Attachment 11) showed tickets were being sold at more than one discount level in violation of WAC 230-11-025(1) (d). They sold four colored tickets (Red, White, Blue & Gold). Each ticket has a different individual price for different buckets, so that this is not a problem. However, this document also shows that there is a discount package for each different colored ticket that has a different price per ticket. This would not be a problem if this were the only discount plan and all the other requirements of WAC 230-11-025 were met. However, the licensee had five more bundles of tickets which included a variety of different combinations of Red, White, and Blue tickets. It was impossible to break down the cost per ticket in these bundles.

This case is closed with a Notice of Infraction (See Attachment 12) for the violations noted above.
